Nancy Wynne Talks of the Little Son Born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walker, 3d—She Sees Mrs. Henry Pease in a Smart Gown

Did you hear that Eleanor Cuyler Walker has a little son? I have not heard what his name will be, but it will be Joseph Walker, 4th, I suppose. It is the third of that name in his family. Eleanor Walker is the youngest daughter of Dr. W. W. Cuyler, of Haverford. She was married about three and a half years ago and Joe, you remember, after training at the officers' school in Chaucer, was sent overseas with the A. E. F. and was wounded soon after our men got into the fight. I hear he is entirely well of his wound, which was very serious, and put him out of the fighting altogether. He has been home for more than a year now, and they are living in their apartment in New York. Their oldest child must be about three and a half years old now. She will be three about December or January. Mrs. Caspar Morris is a sister of Mrs. Walker. She was Miss Helen Cuyler.

Have you heard about the Bundle of the Emergence Aid and the N. S. Wednesday? They ask you to look through your things and any old clothes you may have, things which you do not want to give even to rummage sales will be gratefully received and sent to the Armenians, who will gladly mend and freshen the old things. That old skirt with a hole in the pocket that the mouse ate when you left it hanging up while you were away, and that coat on which you upset a cup of chocolate one spring, and that beautiful old negligee that you have slipped into after a tiresome day, when you wanted to relax, and which you cannot wear again, perhaps you think they are hopeless, but you do not know what the new places can be cut out, and the good parts cut into smaller garments for some little, cold and hungry baby. So don't be ashamed to contribute things, they'll be welcome. The only contributions they do not want are hats, because they cannot pack hats and the women over there do not wear them anyhow, so why send them? There are to be receiving stations in various parts of the city.

I saw Mrs. Henry Pease on the street yesterday looking very smart in a black blue tulle gown. The bodice was made with a blouse at the waistline and was cut square at the neck and outlined with white. Her rather large hair was done in blue rather than white, and she had a pair of white georgette and trimmed with sequined feathers of the same blue. Her little daughter was with her. Really she looks like her mother, but she has that same eye, it's almost funny, the same eyes and lovely curly hair and the same expression about the mouth. She had on a black skirt with a hole in the pocket and a round dark blue hat finished with a ribbon streamer.

Philadelphiaans are interested to hear that Ellen Randolph, of New York, is to be married this fall. She is the daughter of Mr. Edmund Randolph, and her mother was Miss Bella Carter, a sister of Mrs. George McCauley, Mrs. Ned Buckley, Mrs. George McCauley, Mrs. James Newman Carter, of this city. Ellen Randolph has been living in Europe for some time and is returning to New York this week on the Finland to join her father, who is now at his country estate in Locust Valley. He has arranged to give a ball in her honor on December 18 at the Ritz-Carlton in New York. And I expect we will see her here in Philadelphia during the season.

WE DO get used to hearing slang from the mouths of babes, but now and then it gets us suddenly, and while we do not approve we cannot help but laugh. I spent an afternoon in the country recently with a charming old lady, and as we were talking under the trees her small granddaughter, aged three, came to visit her nurse to see her. I was greatly taken with the small person and tried to make her talk with me, but she seemed distrustful and kept looking at her grandmother in a worried sort of way. Finally she spoke, and the remark was rare. "Grandma," said she, "you better move your chair 'fom me, 'cause it's raising me right fall on your head."
